to the FREEHOLDERS of the county of RIFE. He is extremely sorry to be under the necessity of adopting this method of returning his most grateful acknowledgments to the Gentlemen who honoured him with their support at the late election. Immediately on his return from thence, Mr Wemyss will do himself the honour of paying his respects to his friends in Rife.

Auction of Pictures.

Collected by the late ALEXANDER SPURD, Esq. of Dunbar.

ABOUT four score PICTURES still remaining unsold, many of these the most capital parts of this valuable Collection, it was determined to expose them to sale in London. In the mean time, another opportunity will be given of their remaining in this country. A great number of the Pictures will be put up at pleasure, and the rest at very low rates.

Those sold at the former auction, were in general 25 per cent. in some instances 50 per cent. below the original value. And as the proprietor wishes to dispose of the whole here, the Public may expect to purchase at very moderate prices.

The auction will begin in Hay's Street, Nicolson's Square, on Monday the 16th instant, at one o'clock, and will continue on succeeding days, if purchasers appear.

Catalogues will be delivered gratis at the house, and at the shops of Messrs. Creech, Elliot, Balfour, and Sibbald, booksellers; also at the Royal Exchange and Poole's Coffee-house.

The Pictures may be viewed, whether by intending purchasers, or others, on Saturday next, from eleven o'clock, and on each day of sale, at the same hour.

The remaining Collection contains works by Correggio, Holbein, Vande Velde, Guido, Bapteste, Vandike, Rubens, De Laet, Mytens, Carlo Dolci, De Jonghe, Oliver, Philippe Laura, Hemskerk, Wootton, Panini, Vanderneer, Scott, Romanelli, Hals, Lambert, Da Vinci, Begeyn, Cooper, Poussin, Caracci, Hubner, Watteau, Wyck, Ferguson, Rigaud, Brower, Kerrings, Nicas, Hendius, Tillemant, &c.

N.B. The capital Pictures by Correggio, Guido, Holbein, and Watteau, esteemed the principal performances of the original Collection, are among these now for sale. They will be entered low.

A porter at the foot of the stair will show the house.

THE Journeymen Masons in Edinburgh think it their duty to inform the Public in general, and their employers and brethren in particular, That, for some time past, a great many have been induced to enter into our business by serving clandestine masters for the space of nine or twelve months, &c. and then assume the name of Journeymen. Others enter to work under the protection of some friends, and by a little well-managed policy, with some persons in trust. The employer is charged, in both cases, the same wages he is for those who have served a regular apprenticeship; and we request our employers, they would not employ such, and our brethren in every place where this shall be known to them, as far as they can, to put a stop to such being employed along with them, for if they find they have not served a regular apprenticeship, for at least three years, giving proper vouchers they had done so, testifying the same shall be observed by us, as far as we can; and that order and regularity, unity and unanimity, friendship and love, may ever be the distinguishing character of free masons, is our sincere wish.

By order of the Journeymen Masons.

FROM THE LONDON PAPERS, July 9.
Hague, July 1. The Pensionary of Holland having laid the letter from the Princes before the Assembly of the States, they approved the conduct of their Committee in stopping her Royal Highness, and resolved to send the Princes notice of the same. The States General having deliberated upon the letter written to them, resolved to send a letter to the States of Holland, insisting upon their immediately removing all obstacles in the way of the journey of her Royal Highness.

By the Dutch Mail which arrived on Saturday, we have the following further particulars of the Princess of Orange being seized:

The 28th of last month the Princess set off from Amersfoort by Rhene and Cutemburg, with a detachment of three or four coaches:—Notices having been sent to the different towns to get relays of horses ready, one of them was remarked by some countrymen, who directly informed the town of Woerden. Upon which a detachment of the burgvoess, and forty of the cavalry, were instantly on the road which the Princess was to pass, who had sent a horseman to inform the town of Woerden of her approach. On their arrival where the Princess was driving on; upon which they presented their bayonets pointed to the horses, and in consequence the coaches were stopped. During this time Deputies from Woerden arrived, and declaring to the Princess the greatest respect, reported, "That in consequence of the present situation of the Provinces, the States of Holland would not permit her Highness to advance on their territory." The Princess desired to go to Gonda, but the deputies informed her it was impossible, but they would conduct her to Schoonhoven; at which place she arrived, and the next morning wrote the following letter:—

To Mr FAGEL, Greffier to the States General.
THE singular accident which has happened to me this day, has occasioned me to write the letter here enclosed to the Pensionary of Holland, containing the motives of my arrival, and requesting him to lay them before their High Mightinesses. I have also thought it my duty to make you acquainted with the event, to enable you to inform their High Mightinesses of it, in the manner you may think most proper. I shall enter into no observations upon the case. Every one who knows me, will readily comprehend how much I must be affected by an event so little according with my sentiments and intentions. Hoping soon to be at liberty to pursue the latter, with the zeal and fidelity which the true interests of my dear country and my family, the support of the constitution, and the re-establishment of peace and order demand from me.

I am, &c.

(Signed) WILHELMINA.
Schoonhoven, June 28, 1787.
Letter from her Royal Highness the Princess of Orange to the Pensionary of Holland.

THE most ardent wishes of my heart, at this moment of danger and alarm to the Republic, (the Prince being hindered from coming himself) to contribute by my intervention, if any way possible, to prevent a civil war which is threatened, and compose the present differences upon the principles of the established constitution, were the only motives of my journey towards the Hague, which I flatter myself would have remained a secret, until my arrival at the House of Oranjesaal, from whence I would have immediately communicated my design to their Noble and Grand Mightinesses, as well as to the States General. I never could have believed that I should see this salutary aim miscarry before I was enabled to use and employ my best efforts for this purpose. You will be informed by this time how I am prevented from continuing my journey; nevertheless, I trust that this delay will not defeat the object in view; and I have thought proper to make you acquainted with the real motives of my journey into Holland, requesting you to communicate them to their Noble and Grand Powers.

I am, &c.

(Signed) WILHELMINA.
Schoonhoven, June 28, 1787.
The following is a copy of a Missive, written to the STATES GENERAL, by the STADTHOLDER, respecting the seizure of the PRINCESS OF ORANGE.

"High and Mighty Lords,

"WE are this moment informed with certainty, that her Royal Highness, our dear Consort, has been stopped on her road from Nimeguen to Grave, near the city of Schoonhoven, by a party of armed Burgers and military, and carried back to the said city, where her Royal Highness is detained in custody, in the name of the Committee of the Lords of the States of Holland. We need not observe to your High Mightinesses, how much our feelings are hurt by this outrage against her illustrious person, who is so dearly attached to us. Your High Mightinesses must easily conceive, that we cannot remain unconcerned at the insult shown us, our wife, and to the person of a Royal Princess; and we expect, with a full assurance, that your High Mightinesses will take such measures, that her Royal Highness may be instantly relieved from her present detention, and set at full liberty. We likewise expect, that your High Mightinesses will not remain unconcerned, when our honour, our dear Consort, and our Children are insulted; and that the said insult done to our Consort will affect you, and be soon repaired; especially as we cannot expect that the Royal Houses, to which our Royal Consort and we are related, will be indifferent, when such an outrage has been committed.

"We remain, &c.

"W. PRINCE OF ORANGE."

Amersfoort, June 29, 1787.

L O N D O N, — July 9.
On Friday evening their Majesties visited the apartments in Windsor Castle, which have been elegantly fitted up for the reception of his Royal Highness the Duke of York, and two German Princesses, who will arrive by the latter end of this month; three royal yachts are in readiness to sail to fetch them over.

On Thursday next, the three yachts are expected to proceed from Deptford down to the Nore, where they will remain till they receive orders to put to sea for the port where the Duke of York will embark.

It is now certain that the birth-day of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will be kept at Windsor with splendour and a ball.

The arrival of the Duke of York, we before mentioned, would be by the beginning of August.

Friday morning, his Grace the Duke of Richmond set off to view the fortifications at Chatham, Sheerness, and Dover.

Saturday noon, Mr Eden and his Lady arrived at his house in Parliament-street, from Paris.

Lord John Russell has declined standing a candidate for Windsor.

Lord Rawdon has completed the body of evidence which he intends to lay before the House of Lords in support of his claim to the dormant Earldom of Monteth in Scotland. The process usually followed in such cases is to the Attorney-General, with an order that he shall take the case into consideration; and report his opinion thereon to his Majesty. To enable the Attorney to form a proper opinion, the claimant states his descent by the different intermarriages, from the person on whose posterity the peerage is claimed was originally entailed. The Attorney-General, if he sees no objection to this state, then reports to the King; after which the petition, with the report, is referred by his Majesty to the House of Peers, the legal tribunal for ascertaining the descent of the peerage. Evidence is heard in support of the claim, and if it proves satisfactory to their Lordships, they resolve that the petitioner has made good his claim; and next they resolve, if the peerage be an English one, that a writ of summons shall be sent to the claimant by the title claimed by him, to attend in his place in the House of Lords.

Lord Rawdon has gone through every part of this process, except bringing the business to the last stage—the House of Peers; but that step his Lordship intends to take early in the next session of Parliament; and it is thought by those who have seen his case, that he cannot fail of success. Should this noble Lord succeed, he will be, at his father's death, what no subject of the Crown is, except the Dukes of York, Gloucester, and Cumberland, a Peer of each of the three kingdoms. He will be Earl of Monteth in Scotland, Earl of Moire in Ireland, and Baron Rawdon in England; and at the death of his uncle, the Earl of Harrington, should his mother the Countess of Moira be dead at the same time, he will inherit the ancient barony of Hungerford, being descended from Edward Lord Hastings (son to the Lord Hastings beheaded by Richard III.) by Mary, daughter and sole heiress of Sir Thomas Hungerford Lord Hungerford, who was summoned to Parliament in 1482, in the reign of Edward IV. just 305 years ago.

It was proposed to Sir George Eliott to be honoured with the title of Lord Gibraltar, or of Baron Morne, of Gibraltar; but he, with the same modesty which he has manifested through the whole of his gallant life, declined the enviable distinction, and took his title from his country residence.

Sir Richard Jebb died worth more money than, notwithstanding the extent of his practice and the prudence of his economy, could have been expected. His professional deportment was indeed marked by uncommon liberality; it was his invariable practice to attend the diseased artisan and labourer without the smallest pecuniary reward; and he paid them as much attention as he did to his patients of a higher class.

We are sorry to inform our readers, that the William, Thomas Loh, one of the most valuable ships that has sailed this season for Quebec, was lost off the banks of Newfoundland, by striking against a large island of ice; her crew had just time to get on board the long-boat before the lunk; in which, after enduring much fatigue and cold, they fortunately reached Cape Breton.

In addition to the loss above stated, accounts are just received of the Mentor, Linn Martin, another of the Quebec fleet, having struck against a field of ice in nearly the same latitude as the William, by which she received very material damages, but was extricated by throwing one-half of her cargo overboard. She was afterwards, with the utmost difficulty, got into port, but had so far filled with water, as to render the remaining part of her lading of little value.

The cargoes of the William and the Mentor consisted chiefly of linen and woollen drapery, silks, shoes, hats, wines, and hardware; consequently their value must have been very considerable. One house alone shipped goods on board the former vessel to the amount of eight thousand pounds.

The severity of cold which was so much complained of in England during the months of April and May, appears to have been felt with equal or superior force in every place from whence accounts have been received, within a thousand leagues of the British coast. By information from Greenland, its effects have been much too certainly, although not correctly ascertained. In Norway, Denmark, and Russia, its intensity was beyond example; whilst its force in the northern provinces of the continent of America, is too clearly indicated by the vast fields of ice, which near the banks of Newfoundland, for almost an hundred leagues, made the sea unnavigable.

It has been idly asserted that the mate and one of the seamen belonging to the William perished with the ship; this, however, we have the pleasure of contradicting in the fullest manner, and on the best authority; the captain, mate, and every person on board have reached in safety the port before mentioned.

From a statement said to be accurate, it appears, that a fleet of one hundred and five ships has been fitted out, from the port of London only, this season, for the Greenland trade, which is nearly a fourth more than ever before cleared out in any one season from the same port. Of its ill success we have received various accounts, in which we hope, that the loss has been greatly exaggerated. A few days, probably, will furnish authentic intelligence. A successful voyage, however, is not to be expected by the owners of even those ships which have escaped danger; for on the arrival of the fleet the sea was so much encumbered with ice, that it was found impracticable to get into a latitude far enough to the northward.

Friday, Colonel Rogers was presented to his Majesty by Lord Onslow; he was most graciously received; and had the honour of kissing his Majesty's hand.

This was the officer who headed the British troops when the general attack was made on the principal redoubt at Savannah in Georgia, by the combined armies of France and America, under Count d'Estaing, and by his gallant conduct gave them a total defeat; and it is hoped the public will not have hitherto been most artfully suppressed.

A most serious difference has recently taken place between the East-India Directors and the Board of Control, the particulars of which are stated to be as follows:

General C. having made a number of appointments of his immediate dependants to the situations of most profit on the Madras establishment, the particulars of which, some time since, were given in the papers; the Company thought proper to resent the injury thus done to their old and faithful servants, and therefore declared the promotions in question to be void.

The dispatches containing these commands were sent, as usual, for the approbation of the Board of Control, or rather of Mr. Dundas, who, offended at the slight thus passed on his protegé, General C. totally reversed the Directors' orders, and confirmed the promotion of the General's friends. A measure so violent, which tended to destroy every restraint over their own immediate servants, was felt by the Directors in the strongest manner; the consequence was, that the Ranger packet, which was to have sailed some time since, has been detained till the present period, and will not be dispatched till this business is put upon a footing more agreeable to the wishes of its owners.

The Commercial Treaty having now taken place near two months, its effects can be somewhat better judged of than it could be in mere speculation.

Of that effect the best report is much in our favour. Previously to the treaty taking place, some high flying speculators burned their fingers, such as the monopolists in Manchester goods, &c. by asking too high prices. The markets, however, soon opened a proper level, and those who laid in their goods upon moderate terms, and have been content to sell at moderate profits, have found their account in it.

Hardware, and the whole of the Birmingham manufactory, have found such ready markets in all the French dominions, that manufacturers cannot be had in a sufficient degree.

A great increase in the exportation of coals and porter; of the first article, though the French a few years ago, from the badness of their own coals, and the unskillful method of using them, could not endure the sulphur of a sea-coal fire. They now have their principal joints roasted a l'Angloise, and coals are the kitchen fuel of most of the sea-port towns.

An increased demand for English books, prints, &c. and, what is very extraordinary, a demand for English bindings, an article the French excelled us in for many years back.

Delft, Queen's ware, and every thing of that species, in prodigious demand; inasmuch that on the first cargo landed at Bourdeaux, guards were obliged to be stationed at the several shops where this species of manufacture was sold, to prevent the inconveniences of a tumult.

Upon the whole, as far as the shortness of the experiment will permit us to judge, our exports to France have by much exceeded our imports, which form the true criterion of an advantageous trade.

A letter from Brest says, that the following ships are fitting out there for sea as fast as possible, an additional number of shipwrights having been sent to work, viz. Le Temeraire, Le Guerrier, La Couronne, of 74 guns each; Le Tigre, Le Lion, Le Constant, Le Sage, and L'Orphée, of 64 guns each; and that several frigates are fitting out at other ports.

Carlton-house begins to promise a scene of active business. The scaffolds rise, the sound of mallets is heard, the high-wrought capitals will soon be placed on their shafts; and, before the winter is far in, the whole facade, it is to be hoped, will possess a state of entire completion.

The Commissioners of the Customs have represented to the Lords of the Admiralty the want of additional cruisers on the sea-coast, and orders have been given to supply the defect.

A large quantity of military stores, and several cannon, are now lading on board different transport ships, by order of Government, to be sent to the West Indies.

At the Westminster quarter-session, on Wednesday, a respectable looking young man was indicted for attempting to defraud General Howard of a draft for seven pounds, in a most singular manner. He sent a letter to the General by a chairman, purporting to be signed by Captain Hendricks, requesting the General to accommodate him with the above sum. Sir George suspecting the fraud, returned word, that he should be glad to see the gentleman, and he would accommodate him. Thompson had the audacity to go, and being introduced to the General, took the draft, and signed it in the name of Thompson, for Captain Hendricks. As he was about to retire, a constable was in waiting, who secured him. Being taken to the watch-house, Hendricks appeared against him to prove the fraud; but the original forged letter, signed by Captain Hendricks, being lost, the prisoner was acquitted. It having been long a matter of surprise, that the European States did not interfere in punishing the piratical powers of Barbary, a correspondent, in reply, desires to suggest the following reasons for their being tolerated in their depredations:—

Spain does not crush them for a very good reason—she has tried it in vain, lower and over again, and now chooses to pay vast sums of money, and to submit to insults which one would suppose intolerable, rather than have her commerce destroyed by a few but spirited people, whom she cannot subdue.

France chooses to put up with some vexatious and even insults, rather than hazard her reputation and trade, against a State from whom might but hard blows are to be got.

Venice does all she can, against Tunis in particular, but that all is but little.

The Italian States have little strength separately, and must therefore either buy peace, or submit to the depredations of the Barbary States.

But it is asked, "Why do not the European States unite against those troublesome people?" Why!—because such a union is difficult to bring about, and almost always ineffectual when brought about. The appointment of the different quotas, the settlement of proper plans, and above all the difficulty of finding a commander who would be approved of, and obeyed by each nation, are unsurmountable obstacles to the success of expeditions fitted out by independent nations.

Of Portugal, America, and Great Britain, it may be observed, the two first are too weak to attempt any attack on the obnoxious States with the smallest hopes of success; and, as to Britain, can any one suppose that she would turn Quixote, and hazard her Mediterranean trade on behalf of the honour of Spain, who herself thinks it not worthy defending, or in favour of the grateful, haughty States of America. The flag of Britain is treated with the utmost respect by Algiers, and all the African States, and no one would wish her wantonly to provoke a gallant (though unprincipled) race of men, who are judged unconquerable by powers and kingdoms, whose enmity they hourly provoke, and who are their immediate neighbours.

The Princess of Orange possesses, it is said, an excellent understanding, which has been improved by every advantage of education. She is well acquainted with history, speaks several modern languages with fluency, is no stranger to the beauties of Latin poetry, and has all the exterior accomplishments that give ease and elegance to greatness. To crown the whole, she is a good and a virtuous woman.

Some letters received from Holland on Saturday mention, that the King of Prussia has proposed a new plan of reconciliation between the Stadtholder and the States, the outlines of which are these:—That the Stadtholder shall abdicate, and retire to Germany for life; that the Princess of Orange shall remain at the Hague, or at Nimeguen, as Regent, during the minority of her son, who is to be Stadtholder as soon as he comes of age. This plan is evidently founded on the supposed personal dislike the States entertain against the Stadtholder. It was communicated to us in some private letters, and we give the report as we have received it. La Paquet.

The Court of Spain is about to declare war against Algiers, that piratical State having violated the late treaty, and began their usual depredations on the Spanish ships. The Spanish frigate which was carrying out seven hundred thousand pieces of remainder of the ransom money demanded by the Dey, has received orders to repair to Cadiz, in consequence of some private advices of a very alarming tendency, received from the Spanish Consul at Algiers.

A DWELLING-HOUSE at Rosemount, consisting of a Parlor, Dining room, Drawing room, several Bed-rooms, Closets, Kitchen, and Garrets, with a small Garden, Coach-house, Stable, &c.

Also, a HOUSE adjoining, to be SOLD, of six rooms, with a kitchen, closets, garrets, and a small garden. This Villa is pleasantly situated, eight miles east from Edinburgh. The air is extremely healthy, and the soil remarkably dry, is very commodious for sea-bathing; being near the town of Peebles, which has also the advantage of a stage coach going to Edinburgh every day.

Any whom the above may suit, will please enquire for particulars at Mr John Somerville writer, Cowgate-head, Edinburgh.—The houses may be viewed every lawful day.

TO BE SOLD,

THE Lands and Barony of Marlefield and Crubbert, lying in the parishes of Eckford, Morebattle, and Yetholm, and county of Roxburgh.

The free rent, after deduction of public burdens, is 1640 l. Sterling.—The whole estate holds blench of the Crown, except a small pedicle, held blench of the Duke of Roxburgh—the value rent is 5486 l. 18 s. 3 d. Scots, and the proprietor has right to the tithes.

The estate lies on the English border, in a healthy sporting country, within five miles of Kelso, pleasantly situated on the banks of the rivers of Keir and Beathmont.—At Marlefield there is a large mansion-house, with suitable offices; the surrounding plantations are extensive and valuable; the timber in most of them full grown, much of it may be cut down without detriment to the remainder or beauty of the place; and about 350 acres adjoining to the house have been long kept in grass, and let annually for pasture only; which if let on lease, or part allowed to be broke up, would yield a considerable advance of rent.

The whole extent of the estate is 4004 acres English, whereof a considerable part is infield, or fine rich meadow and arable lands, capable of great improvement.—The rest excellent sheep pasture, not heathy muir, but kindly fertile grass on verdant hills; and the lands in the parish of Yetholm have a right of pasture, &c. on a neighbouring community of great extent.—Wherever inclosures have been made, the hedges thrive exceedingly well, and there is plenty of stone in the grounds for inclosing the pasture grounds.

Apply to Hugh Warrender, writer in Edinburgh, in whose hands the rental and title-deeds, with surveys of the estate may be seen; or to William Smith, writer in Kelso, who will direct the estate to be shown.

It is eight miles west of Paisley on the road to Irvine, and in the exact center between Paisley, Irvine, Kilmarnock, and Greenock.

Upon this property there is a good house, and garden stocked with fruit trees, and an elegant court of offices newly erected.

A valuable Flag and Stone Quarry has been opened in the ground; and it is believed there are both coal and limestone in it, but both these articles are in such plenty, and so near indeed, that no essay has been made for them.

There are about ten acres of wood, and a good deal of timber on this farm; and thriving belts of planting surround the greatest part of it. The tenants are bound to preserve the planting and woods, which are fully fenced.

The title-deeds of these lands, and the articles of roup, are in the hands of James Buchan, writer to the signet, St James's Square, No. 12.

A private bargain can be concluded before the day of sale, either with Mr Neal at Glasgow, the proprietor, or Mr Buchan.
